Vine/perennial	Trumpet Honeysuckle	Lonicera sempervirens	Major Wheeler	A native non-stop bloomer with showy clusters of red flowers from spring through late fall.

Vine/perennial	Kintzley's Ghost® Honeysuckle	Lonicera reticulata	Kintzley's Ghost®	Native to North America. Each season, it begins like any other honeysuckle, with typical dusty green leaves. As the season progresses, flower buds pop out like saucers. These rounded bracts look a lot like eucalyptus, but the flowers at the center feed native pollinators like hummingbirds! They turn into red berries in the fall, but won't become a nuisance like other honeysuckles.
Vine/Perennial	Firecracker Vine	Manettia cordifolia	John Elsley	Bright red, 2" long, tubular flowers are born in profusion from summer to fall on this delicate looking but tough small (5-8') growing perennial twinging vine. Dies to the ground in winter returns each spring from potato-like tubers. A hummingbird favorite, zone 7
Vine/Perennial	Evergreen wisteria	Millettia reticulata		Not only a beautiful and fragrant perennial vine, it's also an excellent alternative to the more commonly seen Chinese wisteria, which is an exotic invasive plant. Sometimes called summer wisteria, this plant is native to southern China and Taiwan, but is not invasive. Neither is it truly a wisteria, although both plants are part of the legume family. Listed as zone 8. Plant in protected site. We had one of these in the gardens for about 10 year and loved it. It died one winter.
Vine/Perennial	Passion Vine	Passiflora caerulea	Becky's Blue & White	White petals centered by an intricate circle of blue filaments, grows 10-20', gulf fritillary butterfly caterpillar host plant
